Terrific rains and howling winds, the result in seven years in northern California, flooded San Francisco bay region homes, crippled telephone and telegraph communication, uprooted trees and sent rivers over their banks.

In the Salinas and Carmel rivers leaped their banks, inundating thousands of acres of agricultural land.

The gales whistled at a 59-mile-an-hour clip near the Golden Gate, whipping the Pacific against the shoreline with such force that old shipwrecks, which have been clinging to the rocks for several years, were sent to the bottom.

A searching party was to be sent out today with provisions for a group of 10, including five women, (Continued on Page Six).

PLOT TO ROB COUNTY BANK THOT BROKEN

Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell Learns of Plans to Break Into Bank

PREVENTS ROBBERY

Name of Institution in County Is Not Told

A plot to burglarize a Pickaway-co bank, which was to have materialized shortly after the first of the year, has been discovered by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell, according to a report he made Monday to Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

An inkling of the plan of thieves to enter a county bank was given to Fissell about five weeks ago and in that time he has been investigating quietly with the result that the plan has been told officials of the bank and they began Monday to make any effort to break into the institution. The name of the bank is not being disclosed.

PLANNED TO TUNNEL
According to Deputy Fissell, the men who planned to commit the act intended to tunnel under the bank then to saw through the wood floor of the bank into the vault. Once inside the vault they planned to disconnect the electrical equipment to halt the burglar alarm's ringing.

The lights in the front of the bank would have remained on because the lighting system and the burglar alarm and gas system are on separate circuits and disconnection of the alarm and gas system would not have hindered the lighting.

Officials of the bank have already begun to reinforce the floor to prevent any effort to break into the institution.

While Fissell has been able to learn these details concerning the plot no arrests will be made because no incriminating evidence has been obtained against any person.

While it is the thought of some persons that arrests should be made in all cases the primary duty of an officer of the law is to prevent crime and that is what was done in this case.

CONCEALED GUN, CHARGE IS FILED

Man Thought Implicated In Pleukharp Case Held On $2,000 Bail.

A charge of carrying concealed weapons has been filed in Hocking-co courts against Gene Tennahill, of Doanville, Athens-co, who is held on $2,000 bond. Tennahill pleaded not guilty when arraigned in justice of peace court.

This is the only development recorded during the past week in the effort of Logan officers to solve the Walter Pleukharp murder mystery which has been under consideration since June 2.

Tennahill was arrested 10 days ago by Athens-co officers who took him to Logan for questioning. The prisoner has had little to say about the Pleukharp case since he was placed in jail. It was learned that some friends of his tried to arrange bond but learning it was $2,000, abandoned the plan.

In the meantime, authorities are concerned over the identity of the revolver which they took from Tennahill. They believe that the gun holds the key to the solution of the crime although this fact has not been definitely established.

Negro Reads Bible Trying To Free Mind

A Bible, a New Testament, lying on the bunk in his cell, is the method through which John "Dumpy" Hairston, 27, colored, indicted for his part in the robbery and murder of John Kidney, 75, Monroe-twp farmer, is attempting to free his conscience of the memories branded there on Dec. 10, when he with five others robbed and beat the aged farmer to his death, according to four alleged confessions.

Hairston, over the week-end just passed, spent nearly the entire time in uttering aloud passages from the Bible which he is able to read.

The other men held in the county jail, Walker Brown, Lacey Adams and Franklin Smith, colored, and Henry Loudermilk, white, spent the week-end in lying on their bunks or pacing back and forth in their cells.

Part of Sunday was spent in a "cleaning-up" under the supervision of the sheriff and his deputies. All five of the prisoners were released from their cells long enough to wash their clothing and to take baths. All were shaved.

THREE IN REFUSAL

Two of Negroes to be Arraigned Tuesday

Efforts of Common Pleas Judge J. W. Adkins to name attorneys to defend the five men held here in connection with the robbery and murder of John Kidney, 75, Monroe-twp resident, were continued Monday when three of the men named Saturday as counsel for the defendants refused to accept appointments.

Barton Walters, named to defend Henry Loudermilk, Charles May, appointed Lacey Adams' attorney and Richard Shukman, chosen to aid Walker Brown, have all asked to be dismissed from the case.

TWO ACCEPT
Former Judge Charles Dreshbach has accepted the appointment as counsel for John "Dumpy" Hairston and Sterling Lamb has accepted to defend Franklin Smith. They have each notified the court of their intentions and have consulted their clients.

Judge Adkins was going over his list of attorneys Monday afternoon in an effort to find men who would accept the appointments but so far has been unable to do so.

The three men who are now without attorneys cannot be arraigned until attorneys have been appointed for them.

ARRAIGN TUESDAY

The two who have attorneys, Hairston and Smith, are scheduled for arraignment in Judge Adkins' court Tuesday at 9 a. m.

In commenting on his desire to be released from the appointment Barton Walters Monday made the following statement: "I fully appreciate the action of the court in asking me to defend. The men (Henry Loudermilk) but my reaction to the whole thing is that I could not conduct a suitable defense."

In the meantime, it is reported from Monroe-twp, that Miss Sarah Kidney, 70, sister of the slain man, is recovering nicely from her injuries sustained during the ordeal. Tax Program Is Rainey Subject

WEEKLY BUSINESS NEWS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The program recommended by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is to be shaped to the will of the Democrats, who will also pare the appropriation estimates of the bureau of the budget, Rep. Rainey of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, made it plain today.

Though ready to cooperate with President Hoover, and the Republicans, in expediting relief measures, Rainey said his party intends to adopt whatever amendments and changes are necessary.

"It is to be regretted," Rainey said, "that the taxpayers of the country are to be subjected now, to new and staggering burdens of taxation. Before these bills are passed, there will be ameliorating modifications which Democratic committees will insert."

HUNT EASY PATH

"It will be the policy of the ways and means committee to adopt those measures of taxation which will be the least burdensome and which will compel entrenched wealth to pay the share of carrying on this government, it ought to pay."

At the same time the Republican leader, Rep. Snell of New York, pointed out that people demanded extra expenditures by the federal government, requiring increased taxes. He said:

"There is not one of these extra expenditures but what the people themselves have absolutely demanded and forced on the president and Congress."

The New Yorker said he was opposed to the issuance of long term bonds to meet a portion of the deficit, as proposed by Rep. Collier (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the house ways and means committee.

BONDS SCORED

"We cannot balance our budget by floating bonds," he added. "If we go too far in issuing additional bonds, the value of those in the hands of the investors will decrease."

He advocated retroactive increases and reductions in income taxes, saying:

"I don't see how it is possible to raise enough money to meet the expenditures without making it retroactive. This will benefit the people of small incomes much more in proportion than anyone else. The large amounts will come from those best able to pay."

Turns Wheat Into Delicious Dishes

Appetizing and inexpensive meals may be served with the help of tasty wheat dishes, prepared in a great variety of ways, believe nutrition specialists in the department of home economics at the Ohio State University.

In addition to being served in the form of whole wheat cereal for breakfast, wheat may be used in vegetable soup, whole wheat chowder, and in scores of other ways. The vegetable soup is made by using 2 cups of finely shredded cabbage, 1 cup of diced carrots, 1 onion cut fine, 1 thin slice of salt pork diced, 3 cups of tomato pulp and juice, 3 cups of milk, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 cups cooked wheat, and ¼ teaspoon soda.

The whole wheat chowder is made according to the following recipe: 2 cups of diced carrots, medium size onion cut fine, 1 thin slice of salt pork, 1 thin slice of fat, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 cups water, 2 cups milk, 2 cups cooked wheat, and 1 teaspoon salt.

Beef and cooked wheat also makes a delicious dish. It is made by using 2 tablespoons of fat, 1 onion chopped, 1 pound beef diced, 2 tablespoons flour, 3 cups water, ¼ of a chili pepper or mango if desired, salt, and 2 cups of cooked wheat. It is best to melt the fat and cook the onion for a few minutes, add meat and brown. When the meat has browned somewhat, sprinkle with flour and add the water. Partially cover and let simmer until meat is tender. Stir in the wheat, add salt to taste, and cook a few minutes.

Scalloped liver and whole wheat is a popular combination in many households. Use 4 slices of bacon, 1 onion sliced, salt, pepper, flour, ½ pound liver, 2 cups cooked whole wheat, ½ cup of hot water. Fry the bacon until crisp, remove it and brown the onion in the fat. Push the onion to one side of the skillet. Salt, pepper, and lightly flour the liver; fry it slowly in the bacon fat until the red color disappears, turning it frequently. Cut up the liver and bacon, mix with the sliced and brown onion, and add more salt if needed. Make a layer of the cooked wheat in a greased baking dish. Add the liver mixture and continue to alternate the layers until all the ingredients are used. Pour the water around the side of the dish, cover and heat for about 30 minutes. Serve from dish.

In 1880, 49,790,000 bushels were grown. In 1931, the production amounted to 50,534,000 bushels. The December 1 price for the 1930 crop was $1.02 per bushel, while the December 1 price for 1931 was only 50c per bushel. The lowest production was made in 1900 with a total of 8,524,000 bushels having a December 1 price of 71c per bushel.

Production of rye in Ohio has been somewhat similar to that of wheat. The largest being produced in 1931 when the crop totaled 1,332,000 bushels and was met with a December 1 price of 39c per bu. This is in comparison with the 1920 crop of 296,000 bushels with a December 1 price of $1.35.

In 1920, total corn production in the State was 172,081,000 bushels with a December 1 price of 65c per bushel. In 1931, 160,920,000 bushels were produced with a December 1 price of 34c per bushel. Not since 1900 has corn sold at this low price in Ohio.

CREDIT CONFERENCE
Arrangements are nearing completion for the state-wide Farm Credit Conference which has been called by Director I. S. Guthery of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, Thursday, January 14. This conference will be held in the Convention Hall of the Deshler-Wallick Hotel in Columbus. Several thousand agricultural leaders and interested citizens throughout the State will attend.

Director Guthery is of the frank opinion that something should be done to establish a link between the farmer and the bank. In an effort to get an honest picture of the present deplorable plight of Ohio agriculture, he has sent out from his Department, a questionnaire to many leading farmers of the state. The result of the survey will be laid before the conference on January 14.

JOY WALKS

BY LESLIE L. PONTIUS.

By LESLIE L. PONTIUS

I am not a naturalist, not even a good amateur; but since childhood I have been a lover of Nature. A bird, to me, is a spirit of all that wanders and is wild, a being of hushed, leafy places, the child of solitude. Nature is virtuous and our Christmas festivals should speak her sanity and her temperance. Trees are a symbol of continuity, joy and childlike gladness, and that is a reason why folk use trees for Christmas decorations.

I was reared in a home where Santa Claus was practically unknown. I never had the joy of hanging up a stocking and rising early to see what "Santy" had brought. He was a deception and detracted from the real significance of the day. True, I was given a toy or two and perhaps a small sum of money to spend, but I was never lavished with presents, and while others proudly displayed their gifts, I quietly slipped away from the joyous crowd and lost myself in the woods. There I contracted a reverence of spirit. There I lived and moved amid the mysteries of birth and life and death, and found all about me a Presence—and today I never feel that Christmas has been spent aright unless a part of that memorable day has been celebrated in the woods.

This Christmas was no exception, and as I walked among the trees I fell to musing. I thought of how nice it would be if folk would lay aside their jealousies and power of suppression, and play the part of Santa Claus oftener than just one day a year. What I have accumulated, I have had to work for. Santa Claus never came to me very often, and several times in my life

Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy is a familiar figure on the reviewing stand as he addresses his beloved Fascists, or on horseback, where he exercises to keep fit in preference to the medicine ball. But here is an unusual photo of Il Duce showing him riding his motorcycle in the grounds of his Villa Torlonia. The dictator is said to be an expert on the gasoline steed—but isn't he an expert at everything?

USE SINCLAIR OIL DURING THE WINTER

Old Man Winter finally arrived with all his fury and extreme cool weather. Now is the time for all motorists to have oil changed in their cars to suit this cool atmosphere. Stout's Sinclair Station at Court and High-st offers one of the best grades of oil for this change in their Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil which is made in five grades, ranging from the Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil Light Medium (SAE 20), a medium boiled oil to the Opaline Aircraft (SAE 60), or very thick bodied grade.

This oil can also benefit the farmers in its use in tractors. When you put oil in the crankcase of your tractor remember from there it goes to your engine's cylinder—to that space between the piston and the cylinder wall. There is where oil does its biggest job! It must fit that space and seal the piston on every compression and power stroke.

A certain new tractor requires a specific grade of oil. Run this same tractor 300 hours or more and the same grade of oil will no longer properly lubricate the engine—the power flows by the piston. That space between the piston and cylinder wall must be sealed! That's why a heavier oil is required after 300 hours to seal the power from blowing by. That's the sound simple method of application set forth by the Sinclair Law of Lubrication.

GROCE BACON AND HAM ARE VERY FINE

John Groce & Son, Inc., probably holds the record in Circleville for business endurance as it has engaged in successful business for the past seventy years and its products, particularly GROCE HAMS, are known throughout the country and even in a number of countries in Europe.

A Circleville visitor in Ireland recently commented on the fact that he had eaten Groce Ham on the ship going across and also when he landed in Ireland. This product has the reputation of being the finest on the market today.

Groce Bacon is also very fine, being cured with the old process which has warranted the good old trade name. These products are not expensive and can be obtained at almost any of Circleville's meat markets and groceries.

Why buy out-of-town meat when you have access to secure the good old sweet-tasting Groce Ham and bacons at reasonable prices. Try these products today!

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTEND SALES

A large number of cattle buyers and other interested persons from Circleville and Pickaway-county attend the sales conducted every Friday at 1 p. m., on S. Rose-st, in Chillicothe, conducted by the Scioto Live Stock Sales Co.

"We need your business, you need our service," is the popular motto of the company.

Anyone interested in livestock buying can get in touch with the manager of the company on Kingston phones 30 and 88 on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and on Chillicothe, number 1917 on Friday and Saturday.

This company offers good conscientious service and is deserving of its trade.

I have worked for a goal and when success seemed to be mine, there had been a slip or a crook, and the laurel wreath which should have been mine adorned the brow of another. Santa hasn't always been kind to me—maybe I haven't played the part right myself. So in the aromatic solitudes far from real and close to Nature, I find the real Santa Claus; here in the scented woods I find a relief for my disappointments.

I started this to be a joy walk, not a musing walk, but yet, we sometimes find joy in a muse. I love to hear the sounds made by the wind blowing through trees. Today the wind was blowing and each bush and tree was a musical instrument and my delight was great as I moved from one tree to another and listened to their different tones. I stopped by a thicket of second growth beech and oaks, over-run and bound together by a wild-grape vine. The music had all the effect of a great orchestra. One runner of the vine seemed to carry the lead and the other bushes the harmony, and as I listened my mind wandered. The violin is not my choice of a musical instrument, yet when in the hand of a master violinist I catch the swing and go dancing along. I have heard some of the great artists play, but to me came the memory of once listening to one of our fellow townsmen, and his playing struck in me a responsive chord, and I was carried away. The rhythm, the grace and ease of his playing was wonderful. And the

Captors of Lone Wolf Convict

Here are the amateur sleuths who ran to earth and captured Ear. Thayer, the 65-year-old desperado, who was the last of the seven convicts who escaped from the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, to be accounted for. They are J. F. Masterson (left) and Roy Dougherty. Three surrendered after gun fight, three preferred death to recapture, and now Thayer is back behind the bars. When arrested, Thayer was carrying the gun which police believe was used in seriously wounding Warden Thomas B. White. Masterson and Dougherty will share $100 reward offered by the Government.

BUY WINTER SUITS OF CHARLES YOUNG

With the cold weather here, predicting winter, now is the time for men and boys to begin selecting their winter clothing. Charles C. Young, owner and operator of Young's Cigar and Candy Store, S. Court-st, has samples of the J. L. Simpson ready-made clothing and asks all those who are buying winter suits to come to his store and look over these samples before the final decision is made and the purchase of a suit.

The Clothing part of Mr. Young's store is just one of the features as his place is better known by the people of Circleville as the home of good candies and the best toasted nuts in town. These home-toasted peanuts secured at Young's have gained their reputation and probably more are sold here than at any other store in the city.

Mrs. Littleton's delicious candies are also handled here and these too, are well-known. With only three years at its present location, Young's Cigar and Candy Store is probably one of the most popular stores in the city. Pay this store a visit today!

Mythical Grid Title at Stake in Classic

What a New Year's dish for the gridiron fan! If there is such a thing as in one game. Tulane boasts its famed captain, Jerry Dalrymple, Don Zimmer and Nollie Felts, while the Trojans point with pride to Johnny Baker, Ernie Pinckert and Orv Mohler. Tulane has gone through the season untied and undefeated but Southern California lost an early game to St. Mary's. This upset, however, is buried in the Trojan's remarkable record, including the victory over Notre Dame and the smashing of Georgia, 60 to 0. Eighty thousand fortunate football fanatics will witness the battle.

Champ To Meet Mickey Walker

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Mickey Walker's brave fight to a draw against Jack Sharkey of Boston in Brooklyn last summer has won the former middleweight titleholder a chance for the heavy-weight crown of Max Schmeling. Joe Jacobs, manager of the German, announced today he expected to sign articles on Tuesday or Wednesday for a 15-round title bout between the heavyweight king and Walker at Miami, Fla., late in February. Madison Square Garden will promote the fight.

The wretched fight of the fumbling Sharkey against the Russian, N. J., "toy bulldog" in Ebbett's Field has cost the white-eyed Bostonian the first 1932 shot at Schmeling, although Jacobs said that if Schmeling defeated Walker he would again risk his title, meeting either Sharkey or Jack Dempsey during the coming summer.

SENDS FORFEIT

Jacobs revealed he had sent a check for $2,500 to the National Boxing Commission to guarantee that Schmeling would be signed for a title defense before Jan. 3. The association threatened to vacate the title unless the champion was on the dotted line by that date.

If Jacobs does as he has promised and signs for the Walker scrap, it will mark the end of a feud between the Garden and Jacobs. And to James Jabbering Johnson, Garden manager, all the credit must go.

Johnson put Walker on the heavyweight map by rushing him in against Sharkey and Johnson was the moving figure in establishing peace between Jacobs and the Garden corporation. Johnson shelved his own private war with Jacobs in order to land the Schmeling fight for the Garden.

If Schmeling fights in New York the match will be held in June or September in one of the ball parks. The German is banned in New York but Johnson would have little trouble pulling the strings for his re-instatement.

TO FIGHT TWICE
"I want Schmeling to fight twice next year," said Jacobs. "If the Garden is willing to have the milk fund sponsor the second show we will sign to meet either Dempsey or Sharkey. We prefer Dempsey, because we think he would draw much better than Sharkey."

"Dempsey should know along about May whether he is going to try a comeback in a big fight and we will take him on in June or September as Dempsey prefers."

"If Jack does not want the fight, we will give it to Sharkey." The heavyweight champion is scheduled to sail from Germany tomorrow. He will arrive in New York on Jan. 4, and go into training after a brief exhibition tour. He will train in Florida for the Walker match.

WAR ON SUNDAY DANCES

AKRON, O.—Winning its "war" against Sunday dancing by influencing the passage of a no-dance measure through city council, the Akron Ministerial Association has continued its Sabbath observance drive and pointed its guns on all "dine and dance" in the county.

Buckeyes Work For Tough Sked

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 28.—Ohio State's present "favorite sons," the Buckeye basketball team that has won its first three games to date, were to return to practice tonight for the game with Vanderbilt New Year's Eve at the Coliseum here.

Four positions on the State quintet appear to be definitely settled, unless accident or loss of shooting eyes cause later changes for the game with the Southern Gentlemen, which has been marked by John Fan as the Zero Game of the year. Vanderbilt has one of the strongest cage teams in its history, according to advance dope, and if the Ohioans successfully hurdle this game, a championship in the Big Ten will be more than a possibility for the state-owned school.

FORWARD IS OPEN
Capt. Joe Hoffer and Howard Mattison, at guards; "Blackie" Conrad, at center; and Bob Colburn at one forward, seem assured to form four members of the "regular" team from now on. The other forward berth is still a toss-up between Herb Brown and Ed Ryan.

Starting today, the Buckeyes will go through two practices at the fair grounds floor daily until next Monday, when classes begin at the university.

Ohio State has an added game to its schedule, according to Coach H. G. Olsen. The Carlet and Gray basketballs will meet the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, Feb. 6, while enroute to try to sink the Navy at Annapolis, Feb. 6. Virginia will probably play the Bucks here in a return game next year.

COURT GAMES SCHEDULED

State Basketball Schedule Is Impressive One This Week; Vandy at O. S. U.

This week's basketball schedule for Ohio teams contains a rosy hue for old John Fan, who can, if he so desires, start out over the state Wednesday and watch good hardwood floor games the last four nights of the week.

Lincoln Memorial will play Wilmington, of the Northwest Ohio Conference Wednesday night. New Year's Eve outstanding cage attraction will be the Vanderbilt Ohio State game at Columbus. Ohio Wesleyan will meet Baldwin-Wallace in the Buckeye Conference that same night.

Vanderbilt will again hold the spot light Friday night when it meets the Wittenberg five at Springfield. Ohio Wesleyan will play again, at Akron, against the Akron Goodyear team. Ohio University, of the Buckeye Conference, will travel to Michigan State, while Wilmington will play the Circleville Athletic Club quintet at Circleville.

Saturday night will see Vanderbilt at Miami; Cincinnati at De Pauw, Ohio Wesleyan at Ashland; Ohio University at Toledo, in Buckeye Conference games. John Carroll will play Case at Cleveland for the only Ohio Conference game, while the Northwest Ohio Conference will send Bluffton to Manchester, Ind., to try for an Ohio victory over an Indiana team.

Highlights from the opening of the Senate Finance Committee's foreign bond inquiry, sponsored by Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, are shown above. In top photo Thomas W. Lamont (left), partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company, is shown as he was questioned by Senator Tom Connally (center) and Senator Thomas P. Gore, Lamont, while asserting that American banks are not dangerously overloaded with German credits, admitted that it is the American public that suffers by deflation, not the banks. Lower left is Charles U. Mitchell, head of the National City Bank, who testified that if Germany is forced to pay her "political" debts before commercial, she will suffer economic ruin. Lower right is a study of Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the Senate Committee, as he listened to the testimony of the financial magnates.

There's One SURE WAY of Getting Her ATTENTION...

BUSY she is. Not wishing to be disturbed. This purchasing agent for thousands of families, Mrs. American Housewife. Yet surely, inevitably, every day of the year, her door opens to let in the Herald. And with the Herald there enter a certain number of salesmen, salesmen who would other wise have been turned away; in short, salesmen who gain entrance through the Herald advertising columns.

SEND YOUR SALESMAN INTO HERALD READER HOMES

Is your salesman among them? Or do you keep him in the shop, waiting for a chance visit from Mrs. Housewife? Remember. Mrs. Housewife is buying. She is spending hundreds and hundreds of dollars a day. And unless you are reaching into the private homes of the Herald readers you are not receiving a rightful proportion of those dollars.

Your merchandise may be the choicest, your values may be the best, but unless you are sending the news to Mrs. Housewife through the medium of the Herald, you cannot expect to find anything but "Busy. Do Not Disturb," on her door.

DEERCREEK-TWP

For the fourth month, ending Dec. 24 our per cent of attendance was 96.8 per cent with an average daily attendance of 330.78. 230 pupils were not absent or tardy. Our total attendance for the month was 345, 193 boys and 152 girls.

We are well pleased with the attendance considering the fact that several surrounding districts report numerous cases of scarlet fever and mumps.

Considerable rivalry has developed between several of the upper grades to see which room can turn in the highest per cent of attendance. For this month the sixth grade ranks first, the eighth second, and the third grade third. We are hoping the rivalry is contagious and spreads to some of the grades. An operetta, Tommy Murrow.

The Christmas program presented by the even numbered grades, on last Wednesday evening was very well attended, in fact standing room was at a premium. The program consisted of a play, Red and the Christmas Whopper, presented by the sixth and eighth grades. An operetta, Tommy Murrow's Christmas was presented by the second and fourth grades. Music between acts was furnished by the school orchestra.

The program was in charge of Miss Campbell, Miss Ater, Mrs. Wertman, Mr. Smith and Miss Betts.

School was dismissed Thursday afternoon, for the holidays and will be resumed Monday Jan. 4th.

On Friday evening Jan. 1 the basketball teams will journey to Kingston.

Donald Carter and Fred Corcoran will represent our school in the all state orchestra, which plays in Memorial Hall Columbus, O., Dec. 30. We understand that these boys were the only ones chosen from Pickaway County.

OLD JEWELS RECOVERED HONOLULU. — Three diamond rings, one of which belonged to the late Queen Emma and to other member of Hawaiian royalty before her were sold to a Chinese jeweler by a juvenile thief for a cheap men's wrist watch and $12 in cash. Police, who arrested the youth and Sing Kee, 23, the jeweler, returned the rings valued at $303 to their owner, Mrs. Roamama Kila, whose mother-in-law had received them as a gift from the queen.

Synchronous Clocks

The bureau of standards says a synchronous clock, operated on a circuit for which it is designated, can neither gain or lose, nor be set. It must be kept in exact step with the generator in the power house. However, if the current stops, the clock will stop unless it has some auxiliary attachment to keep it running.

Father of Postage Stamp

It is not generally known that a blind man gave the world its postage stamp, says an article in Popular Science Monthly. In 1840 Sir Rowland Hill, head of Great Britain's postal service, suggested the idea which has since spread to all parts of the globe. The first American stamp appeared in 1847 and bore the portrait of Benjamin Franklin.

Righteousness

The man of high station without righteousness is a menace to the state; the common man who has courage without righteousness is nothing more than a brigand.—Confucius.

Indian Peace Medals

The early peace medals given to the Indians were struck in any design to suit the fancy of the donor. Beginning with Jefferson's day, a standard official medal was adopted and those following were the same size, design and metal, with the names of the respective Presidents, until the administration of Lincoln in 1850, when the reverse was entirely changed.

New Idea at Barbecue

Natural gas solved the problem of roasting a ton of beef at a barbecue in the Southwest, at which 3,000 customers of a utility company were fed. A trench three feet deep and about fifty feet long was dug and burners of perforated casing were placed below a double layer of loose brick. A heavy wire grate was stretched above the brick and on it was placed the ton of beef to be roasted.

RUGBY
THERE is every indication that the football rules committee this winter will tinker with the regulations in an effort to make the game safer.

The kickoff may be abolished, line men may be prohibited from leaving their posts to make interference on ends runs, and this, that and the other minor rule may be changed.

But there remains in the minds of many persons, the one important question, which the rules committee will not even consider, namely, isn't it quite possible that the game of American rugby to be abolished entirely?

The exhibits against the game, they assert are damaging.
First, last and most damaging is the fact that something like two-score young men were killed playing the game during the autumn season of 1931.

It has been said that that number is not large, considering the vast numbers of young men playing the game. That is sheer nonsense, the objectors declare. It is large—appalling large. You might ask, they say, the parents of one of those dead boys how they feel about it, and see what sort of answer you get.

Defenders of the game also point out that most of these fatalities occurred on teams which lacked high-grade coaching, and that boys who were properly trained do not run such risks. But that—putting entirely aside the fact that such splendidly coached teams as West Point and Fordham suffered tragic casualties—only leads us to the objectors' second count against football; that it has become a game for experts, a game that no boy should play unless he can, almost literally, give all of his time to it.
A poorly trained basketball player, poorly trained golfer, they do not run the risk of losing their lives when they start to play.

Add to these counts the emotional out of the game, illustrated by Chick Meenan's recent confession about "whipping boys to a frenzy" and the critics of the game say they have a right to be alarmed.

On the other side, of the Atlantic there is another kind of football—English rugby. Innumerable Englishmen play it; innumerable other Englishmen watch them. Fatalities are extremely uncommon. Spectators and players alike seem to enjoy the game quite as intensely as we enjoy our game. Wouldn't it be wise, they assert to see if English rugby might not replace the American article?

PORNOGRAPHY
NEW YORK is having another of its periodic "clean-ups" of rueful magazines with professional uplifters, the police and the federal district attorney's office all having a hand in the good work.
The purpose of the drive is to stop the publication and sale of periodicals which come within the purity league's definition of obscene.

These guardians of the public morals are, of course, acting only for the protection of youth. They do not presume to censor the reading "looking" matter of adult America. Interfering with the traffic in pornography would, no doubt, be farthest from their thoughts if they were sure the youth of the land were in no danger of demoralization.

It is unfortunate that the moral force of these vice crusades must always come from paid reformers, and it is strange that the complaints against pornographic literature do not come from the parents and guardians of the demoralized youth. Either the purity leaguers are hot on the trail or parents are dangerously neglectful of their young.

Adolescents should not be fed a mental or emotional diet of the lascivious, but if their appetites run in that direction they have little trouble in satiating them. By constant vigilance the forces of law and order can keep the worst specimens of the counters and out of the public eye, but they cannot continue to find circulation through bootleg channels where there is every encouragement for peddling absolute indecency, pure and unrefined.

SECRETARY Stimson's request to carry along for six or eight conference next year indicates that Washington anticipates a long struggle and intends to fight it out until the end.

The London naval conference last year lasted three months, the Washington conference in 1921-22 somewhat less. Both were considered, at the time, endless affairs, but now the state department talks in terms of half a year and longer.

The CZARINA'S RUBIES

by Sidney Warwick

READ THIS FIRST
Frank Severn has been kidnapped from his country place. Baggart's Court, where his lawyer, Felix Sant, takes charge. Jim Wynter and his friend, Bill Grayson, search the place and find a hidden stairway and a locked door in the ruins of an ancient chapel. They begin to suspect Sant of being in league with the kidnappers when a wall "accidentally" falls, blocking this door and become convinced of it when they find in his desk an anonymous letter addressed to Wynter, which obviously had been held up because it gave warning that Sant was not to be trusted.

Grayson, his wife, Wynter, and Katharine Faring take a house, Man-orways, near Baggart's Court. Katharine is the rightful owner of the missing Czarina Rubies, by inheritance from her Russian grandfather, and Severn had tried to recover them for her.

Martin, Sant's servant, and a thug named Frome, make a vain attempt to assassinate Wynter, and Grayson calls in a Scotland Yard detective.
At Baggart's Court Wynter meets Helen Blair, whom he likes, although she is the step-daughter of mysterious Dr. Martell, who, Wynter is convinced, is in the plot against Severn. The girl vainly tries to tell Wynter something.

NOW GO ON CHAPTER XLVIII
"A shame to startle you like that, my dear!" Martell laughed, like one who has played a boyish practical joke. "But I couldn't resist making you jump!"

But that had not been his real reason, Jim Wynter knew. And what had Helen been about to say that this listening man, of whose hidden presence behind the curtains neither had dreamed, had been suspected and had deliberately arrested before those further whispered words could be spoken?

"How are you, Mr. Wynter?" Martell added with apparent cordiality, holding out his hand—a hand that Jim had to take. "I hope I didn't intrude tactlessly on any private conversation?" he added with bland smiling smoothness.

"No, nothing private," the girl forced herself to say.
Jim had the feeling that she was wondering desperately how much Martell had overheard. Perhaps she guessed he must have overheard those last words and felt she must attempt to explain them away, for she went on:

"I was only going to warn Mr.
Wynter—"
"Warn him? But what on earth should you have to warn Mr. Wynter about, Helen?" her stepfather said suavely.

A HARD MAN
The bearded un-English face was smiling with a glint of white teeth.
But there was no sincerity in the smile. Jim, as he watched the cruel mouth that the mustache only partly hid, wondered how he could ever have been deceived for a moment into thinking of this man as a kindly good Samaritan. Ruthlessly, deadly.
As dangerous as a beast of prey in the shadows of a jungle.

Helen forced a laugh. The pitiful ghost of a laugh Jim knew that she was shaking with fear. She could not keep that fear out of her eyes—and behind her fear was a gleam of desperate hatred of this smooth smiling man.

"Oh, just a playful warning," she said, trying to make her tones sound light. "Mr. Sant has been speaking of the collapse of a wall soon after Mr. Wynter had been exploring the ruins. More in jest than anything else I was going to warn him not to run further risks there."

armament reduction come to terms satisfactory to it. It knows and freely talks of the inevitability of opposition, but, in spite of all threats of failure, is determined to attack at the appointed time.

One reason more time is being allowed for the 1932 conference than was consumed by its predecessors is that vastly more work is laid out for it. The others were mere bites at the pie.

Real Sky-Pilot
The word "sky-pilot" took on a new significance for Father John Fagan, young Brooklyn, N. Y., priest, shortly after this picture was made, for he was informed that he had passed the Government test for his pilot's license. Father Fagan had thirty-six hours in the air and was pictured as he took his test at Roosevelt Field, New York.

Studying the Functions of the Spleen

Research Shows This Great, Ductless Gland to Have Important Relation to the Blood Supply.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City.

WHAT do you know about the spleen? The spleen is a great gland—a ductless gland. It is located in the left side of the body, just below the lower end of the stomach.

This organ is believed to manufacture the red corpuscles found in the blood. It also manufactures the hemoglobin which gives the coloring to the red cells or corpuscles.

The spleen is believed to team work with the liver, having important functions that aid in the digestion of food. However, the definite purpose of this organ is not very clearly understood.

It used to be thought that life could not exist without the spleen.
But a man, severely injured in an accident, was rushed to a hospital where it was found necessary to remove his spleen. He made a remarkable recovery. This is the first proof that life could go on without the spleen.

A dozen years ago it was discovered that the spleen had some significance in a disease known as purpura hemorrhagica. In this disease severe hemorrhages, or bleed-ings, occur at unexpected times and places. These hemorrhages recur again and again, and may terminate fatally.

Research into a means of relief for purpura hemorrhagica proved that removal of the spleen benefits this disease, reducing the number of hemorrhages. Many cases have been reported showing the advantages of this radical operation.

Unfortunately not all cases have responded to the expected benefit. Some authorities believe that a more appropriate—the name for removal of the spleen—is performed, the relief is only temporary. On the other hand, there are other authorities who advocate the operation, claiming that the relief obtained is permanent. In a recent review of over 100 cases of purpura hemorrhagica, 30 per cent of the cases were regarded as cured after the operation.

Cases must be carefully watched from three to five years before anyone can definitely say that a cure has been effected. We have much yet to learn about this disease.

Purpura hemorrhagica is a disease that usually affects young and delicate individuals, particularly girls.
The patient becomes very nervous and is in perfect health.

After a few days of weakness, purple spots appear on the skin.
These rapidly increase in number and become very numerous. The spots of the body may occur in the show by nose bleeds, blood in the urine or by the spitting of blood.

Usually, because of the loss of blood, the patient becomes very anemic.
In the mild cases, the condition terminates in about two weeks. In the more severe forms it may last over two months, and it may persist for many years.

It is hoped that within the next few years, the real value of the operation may be definitely proved.
During this period it will be possible to study those individuals who have undergone this operation and see whether their benefits are sufficient to warrant the procedure.

Answers to Health Queries Doty Q.—What should a girl of 15 1/2 in. 11 inches tall weigh?
What should a girl of 14 1/2 in.
10 inches tall weigh?

A.—They should weigh respectively 107 and 104 pounds. This would be about average for their ages and heights as determined by examination of a large number of persons.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has reissued its greatest film, "The Big Parade." The picture, enhanced with new and thrilling sound effects, made its triumphant return last night at the Cliftona Theater and proved itself to be a film which not only survives the years but stands out as the most convincing and moving story ever portrayed on the screen.

The addition of sound brings out the best in this vital drama of an American doughboy intensifying both the tragic war scenes and the many tugging comedy moments. The picture is simply packed full of humor, of pathos, of wit, of comedy and of drama that is profoundly moving. Melisande (Renée Adoree), left courtroom on the road after Jim (John Gilbert) had gone off in a motor truck, typifies the best of the race of women. A scene in a shell-hole where tobacco-chewing Slim (Karl Dane) spits at a target and so wins the chance to save his two pals from almost certain death is without heroes.

"How About That Guy?"

A LITTLE JOURNEY with BOB WHITE

After a sojourn of several months in England, more than three weeks in London after the war of 1914 was well underway, I was more than ever impressed that our glorious United States was "The Land of Opportunity."

The people of the war torn countries across the sea are not globe trotters as we Americans are. Their cities are old, ours are new, their methods generally are old and ours new. The great city of London is old, very-very-old, and with its grime and centuries of stains and blackness, its queer buildings, its dark nooks and corners, suggests Dickens, Bill Sikes, Fagin and Oliver Twist and the "Old Curiosity Shop." A thousand things that Charles Dickens wrote about were still to be seen.
The dwarfed people are everywhere, their short arms and legs, their long bodies, abnormally large heads and bulging eyes were just as Dickens described them.

We saw them clambering up the stairs of the lumbering busses that made their way around Trafalgar square, passing Charing Cross station and on up the Strand to St. Paul. We pass the residence of the Lord Mayor of London.

Our bus was halted by the great crowd waiting to see the great coach drawn by four white horses with scarlet trappings with the Lord Mayor and his lady, and another coach with the High Sheriff. A hundred years had made no change in this ceremony and we were fortunate to see it.

We will go on to the great eastern side where crime and poverty go hand in hand. The great east side of New York is not as dark and forbidding. It is here and in the side streets and by-ways that you see the floats and the tattered and battered throng of derelicts that have no where to lay their heads when night and the great fog settle over the city. The Pubs or Saloons are patronized by men and women whose flushed faces and blackened eyes tell the story all too plainly why they are homeless and friendless.

One of the strange companion ships are these people and the beautiful flowers that they offer for sale on the streets of London.
They visit the old Covent Garden Flowers-Market every day and buy a supply for their vending at a penny or so for each flower. It strikes one that it is queer companionship but every English man loves the bright flowers.

They are Nature's sweet emblems of purity, the white, the pink and the yellow. They contrast strangely with the men and women that sell them.

Every year the flowers come along with their bright faces, messengers of cheer to the world, while the men and women sink lower in the scale of degradation. There are lots of things we cannot fathom the meaning of. We see bright scarlet flowers on the wandering souls of the most God-forsaken tenements. We can see plainly when the vendors say, "Buy some flowers, Master," that they have a real and keen appreciation of the beauty of the wares they offer for sale. We are forced to remember that these people never get out into the open country where Nature smiles most. It is just year in and year out in Old London that they love and never leave from birth to death. We may pity them but we must not judge them harshly. They know what their fathers and mothers knew before them. Generation after generation it is the same.

When we think of the great War we wonder if lots of the English-Johnnies did not rub elbows with our boys "The Sammies" and learn a lot about our glorious United States. We, however, can learn from the Johnnies. It is always "God save the King" with them.
Would it not be better manners if we would say "God help and guide our President" and when once we have made a choice of great and able men to be our servants we should encourage them lay aside politics. Remember our President is just human. From the rocky shores of Maine to the flower and fruit lands of California it should be "God save the President" what ever party he belongs to. Sir Walter Scott says "Breathes there a man with soul so dead who never to himself hath!

Wait not for precious chances passed away.
Weep not for golden-ages on the wane.
Each night we burn the records of the day.
At Sunrise each soul is born again.
With the coming of 1932—let us forget all of the hardships of 1931.
Sincerely,
BOB WHITE.

400 FARMERS AT LIVESTOCK MARTS

About 4,000 farmers from 25 counties participated in organized tours to the terminal markets during the past year, says C. W. Hammons, specialist in marketing at the Ohio State University.

Organized tours to the markets were organized by the counties for two reasons: to make a study of the mechanics of operations on the market and to study the methods of sale employed on the terminal markets by various operating companies.

Mixmaster Does More Things, Better, Than Any Other Food Mixer Made

MIXES, MASHES, WHIPS, BEATS, EXTRACTS JUICE and has a salad oil dripper

Don't be misled—you'll only be satisfied with a Mixmaster, the master of all food mixers. You have to compare it feature by feature, with any other mixer made to appreciate why women prefer it. Mixmaster is easier to use because there is nothing to hold, adjust or turn. The 2 beaters turn by themselves as the beaters run. The motor tilts back, allowing beaters to drain into the bowl, and enabling you to remove or replace a bowl at any time. Mixmaster practically cleans itself. Take off the beaters or not, as you wish. Its fruit juicer slips on easily and can stay there or be removed after using at will. You can juice and mix at the same time. Mixmaster is the most powerful of small mixers, runs quietly, and costs only $21.00 complete with 2 mixing bowls, juice extractor and automatic salad oil dripper. IT BEATS EVERYTHING.

ADVOCATE SPECIAL INSTITUTE FEATURE

Local talent is proving an important factor in building interesting programs for the state's some 750 Farmers' Institute, declares R. B. Tom, rural sociologist and specialist in recreation at the Ohio State University.

More and more, he says, ruralites are developing and using local talent on their institute programs. Such talent may be used in many ways.

The music on the programs can be made a special feature and it is a good idea to use it in dramatizations, pantomimes and tableaux. Old time fiddlers and dancers may be presented and some of the older folks will enjoy doing old dances in costume. Unusual instruments such as Jews harps, accordions, zither harps, and harmonica bands, all add zest to the program.

Another worthwhile feature is a costume exhibit of America from the American Indian down to the present. This feature might utilize music and the dance. It might start with the American Indian in a camp fire scene and dance. It can be followed with the Colonial minutemen given by four couples. Next could come the period following the Revolution. Here the Virginia reel may be done in the costume of the day. Other periods could be represented in costume.

In addition to various uses of local talent, many farmers' institutes find exhibits helpful in making their program both attractive and entertaining. Poster, grain, and baked goods exhibits are good features, but unusual exhibits such as old firearms, stamps, coverlets, old stone jars, old coins, old musical instruments, and other antiques add variety to the program.

Brides for Sale—Reasonable (?)
"Auction" Matrimony Enjoying Unprecedented Boom at Wide Price Range. Groom Also on the Block.

The epidemic of would-be brides who are placing themselves upon the auction block with neat price tags around their necks is growing to alarming proportions. For prices ranging from $1,000 to $15,000 it is possible to secure almost any type of wife one can desire—blonde, brunette, avelte or stylish stout. The auction block matrimony wave now sweeping the country was started when Mary Clowes, of New Eagle, Pa., recently offered to marry any respectable white man who would give her $10,000 to take care of her parents. In less than a week after Mary had climbed upon the block, her example had been followed by three other Pennsylvania girls. Virginia Mae Parker, of Pittsburgh, undercut Mary's offer by 50 per cent, pricing herself at $5,000, and giving a sick father as the reason for her presence in the marriage market. Soon the fad began to spread and "brides for sale" is now almost as common as apartments for rent, all over the country. That the idea is also taking root in the male mind is evident from the offer of William Roberts, 28-year-old Chicagoan, who tells the world that he'll make a good husband for some lonely she-male who can put up $10,000 purchase price.

Court-st. told police that sometime during Sunday night or early Monday thieves had entered the garage in the rear of her home and drained gasoline from a Graham-Paige coupe parked there.

Walter Spencer, register of the Denver federal land office, declares that during the year ending Dec. 1, 1931, 1,104 applications for homesteads in Colorado had been received by his office.
